Heather Graham is smoking hot — and, last night, so was her Manhattan penthouse.

A blazing fire in the sexy actress' Union Square pad was sparked when burning candles left on her bathtub ignited nearby clothes, according to FDNY officials.

The fire in the 12th-floor Broadway home started at about 10 p.m. and took 45 minutes to put out.

"It was candles that maybe caught some clothes that were left near the tub," said FDNY Chief John Bley.

Graham, 42, best known for "Boogie Nights," "Austin Powers: The Spy Who Shagged Me" and "The Hangover," rushed back to the 2,000-square-foot apartment after the fire was extinguished.

She isn't the building's only star: Zach Braff, of TV's "Scrubs," reportedly lives just one floor down.

A rep for Graham declined to comment.
